SHOULD KEEP ACCOUNTS.

Farmers Lose Money by Not Knowing Their Exact Expenses and Income.

"One of the most universal wastes on the farm," said the late Col. J. H. Brigham, assistant secretary of agriculture, "arises from the practice of keeping scrub stock, which is likely to occasion loss rather than profit."

"Coincident with this is the common waste resulting from careless feeding and lack of proper shelter for and attention to farm stock."

"The neglect of probably the majority of farmers to keep close account of the various details of farm expense and production results in farmers continuing to raise this scrub stock, whereas they would otherwise weed it out without delay."

"No business man could expect to succeed if he neglected to keep accounts, and the farmer should not expect to fare better than the business man. We are getting to the point in American farming where every part of the machine must do its work."

"If the farmer is to make a success of his life business he must systematize that business in detail. For instance, no subsequent cultivation will cure or overcome a lack of thoroughness in the preparation of soils for any crop. No subsequent attention will overcome the result of carelessness in selecting seed, or in planting it."

"The farmer should have a definite plan worked out to keep up or improve his farm fertility and to make the most of his home-made fertilizers. Improper exposure of manure to the weather results in the loss of untold thousands of dollars in farm fertility in this country."

"Allowing valuable farm machinery when not in use, to remain in the field, exposed to the elements, is a source of constant loss to many farmers. A good system of farming and close attention to details may bring better results than a greater investment or a more favorable locality."

MISS GOULD "HELPS" IDAHO.

Daughter of Millionaire Sends Speakers Into the State.

Miss Helen Gould, who inherited millions of dollars from her father of money made by wrecking railroads, has invaded the realm of politics in Idaho by sending speakers into the state to proclaim the purity of the American home, just as if the women of Idaho were not competent to pass judgment on conditions in their own state, says the Boise Capital News.

The first of the brigade of speakers, which is to tell the people of Idaho the conditions existing in their own state, is Mrs. W. R. White, of Philadelphia, who arrived Sunday morning for the purpose of campaigning the state in the interests of the Dubois ticket.

Soon after her arrival she was called upon by Charles Hervey Jackson, that exemplar of moral and social purity, and at the present time the generalissimo of the Dubois party; Charles E. Arney, a political orphan without a home, and Bishop J. D. Penner, erstwhile Methodist preacher, and now special exponent of the morals and social purity of the homes of Idaho, according to the standard set up and practiced by the senior senator of this state, who is now trying to wreck the democratic party in Idaho for the purpose of building up a machine and party of his own in hopes it will return him to the United States senate two years hence.

COL. GEO. B. HAZEN VALUES HIS HOLDINGS HERE.

Portland Attorney Owns 320 Acres of Rich Land Near Pendleton—Relates a Story of His Short-sightedness in Not Buying Two Quarter Sections at $400 Each—Same Tracts Are Now Worth $3000 Each—Prominent Oregon Shriner.

Colonel George W. Hazen, of Oregon, more particularly of Portland, is in Pendleton today, the guest of George S. Bell, of the Hartman Abstract Company. Colonel Hazen owns farming lands in this county and is enthusiastic in his praise of the resources of the inland Empire.

"I own 320 acres near Pendleton," he said, "but I might as well have possessed 10 times as much. I realized that farming lands here would be worth money, but I lacked the nerve when it came to a question of going in debt to purchase property."

A few years ago during the hard times, Mr. Hazen foreclosed a large amount of land in this and other Eastern Oregon counties for clients in the East. "I foreclosed," he said, "about 25 pieces of property in Umatilla county and about 40 each in Gilliam and Sherman counties."

The colonel relates an incident of his shortsightedness. "Two years ago," he remarked, "I was elected representative of the supreme concave of the Shriners that convened in San Francisco. I invited Mrs. Hazen and my son to accompany me. We prepared for the trip when I received word from Eastern clients to sell two quarters of Umatilla farming lands at the ridiculously low figures of $400 each."

"It looked like a good bargain for someone, and I told my wife and son if they would forego the California trip I would purchase the property for them. If they went with me I did not feel that I could stand the expense of buying the land."

"They concluded that the trip was worth more than the land and I did not make the purchase. The other day one of the quarters sold for $3000 and I understand the other is worth equally as much."

Colonel Hazen is a prominent member of the Mystic Shrine and was present at the meeting in Walla Walla last Saturday night. Tomorrow he will drive into the country and will return to Portland on the night train.
